

December, 2011

Merry Christmas from the Emra Clan

Brian has a new job working in Milwaukie, OR. He is the shipping and receiving clerk for a small business. He loves it. It is not too far from home and it is a place where he is appreciated and cared for. He is praising God for this new job!

Paul and Katie are living in Royse City, TX (about 30 miles east of Dallas). Paul is meter-reading for the city of Garland and Katie is loving being a pre-school teacher to Liam (four years old) and David (two years old) and a "working-at-home-mom."

All of them are healthy and doing well in the Lord. We appreciate your prayers over the years on their behalf.

John and I try to see them at least once a year. We miss not having them closer but praise God for the technology that keep us connected. It has been a special joy to be able to have long conversations with Liam who loves to talk on the phone now.

We have had a busy year writing books, traveling, training Churches and recovering from various illnesses (maybe from all the traveling). It has been a great year with lots of new experiences in which God has been able to teach us about ourselves and the relationship He want to have with us.

May the joy of Christmas draw you and your family and friends together in a special way this year.

Merry Christmas,

Sheryl,
for John and Sheryl Emra